The designer for The Passing Show of 1917 was probably Homer Conant, who provided drawings for a majority of the outlandish outfits worn by the chorus. Conant worked extensively for the Shubert's during the 1910s, sketching designs for most of the stars as well as the chorus members. Some of the more imaginative images for 1917 included women dressed as postage stamps for “Won’t You Send a Letter to Me?” ... [Westover, p.p. 24-25]
